About IVEI

“IVEI” stands for “I Value Every Idea”. We are a NGO with the initiative to support the craftsmen who have the skill but not the opportunity. Their skill and our design , together merge to create uniquely crafted products to best suit today’s taste and style.

Navya Agarwal, a product designer from Raffles Millennium International, Bengaluru, is the founder and designer of IVEI. With the hope to revive art in rural India, she aims to give our local craftsmens’ talent the respect that it deserves.

Our mission is to promote art in the under privileged sectors of our society , and to help them earn a better living. We are based in Sitapur , a small town near Lucknow ,Uttar Pradesh (India). On visiting various villages we were surprised to see the amazing talent , some of these people had put their art aside as it was not enough to earn a living , while the others were not getting their skill’s worth. We promised to pay each of them like an artist deserves to be paid, reviving their interest in their passion. Our craftsmen are now content and happy as they earn more than what they did; for a job that they love.

We also provide them with training and give them other possible assistance to help them polish their skills.

We love nature, so we use scrap wood from furniture factories. We also love quality, so we only use seasoned and treated scrap hard wood, with 8-10% moisture content.
